LEAP DAY FOR FROGS

We celebrate Leap Day for Frogs every February in order to learn more about our froggy friends and how to protect them. Unfortunately some people aren't big frog fans which is why we use this day to teach, learn and talk about the importance of frogs in our environment!

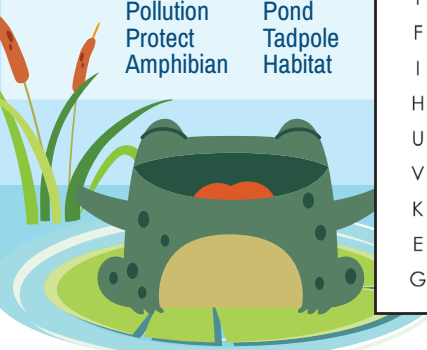

There are 125 frog species in South Africa and a third of those are threatened by habitat destruction, increasing levels of pollution in freshwater systems, disease and climate change. The EWT's Threatened Amphibian Programme (TAP) is working hard to protect some of South Africa's most threatened amphibians, including the Endangered Pickersgill's Reed Frog and the Critically Endangered Amathole Toad, and Western Leopard Toad.

FREDDY THE FROG HAS A COMPETITION FOR YOU!

Spotting and tracking frogs is a big part of what the EWT does to conserve these cute little amphibians and that's why we are offering you the chance to get spotted with your own frog!

All you have to do is cut out, fold and decorate Freddy the Frog, snap a picture of you and him having fun and you could win yourself an awesome headlamp so you can find even MORE of our country's amazing little critters. Just remember to tag us and use #Freddythefrog and #LeapDay4Frogs when you post the photo to Facebook, Twitter & Instagram.
